St. Michael's Church, a key landmark in Hamburg, is renowned for its Protestant baroque architecture, distinct from other churches converted during the Reformation. Dedicated to Archangel Michael, it features a notable bronze statue symbolizing his victory over the devil. Its 132-metre copper spire has historically guided ships sailing up the Elbe River.

Place Two

Baumwall, an embankment along the Hamburg Harbour, is situated on the prominent headland of Fleet Island, bordered by Herrengrabenfleet, Alsterfleet, and Binnenhafen. Falling within Neustadt's jurisdiction, Baumwall is linked to Altstadt and HafenCity by bridges spanning Alsterfleet and Binnenhafen. Historically, it served as a water barrier and was integral to Hamburg's defensive Wallanlagen.
